

Manahawkin Instructional Site to Host 'German Art vs. Degenerate Art' Lecture on June 20

For Immediate Release

Thursday, June 02, 2016

Contact: Christina Butterfield
News and Media Relations
Galloway, NJ 08205
Christina.Butterfield@stockton.edu
(609) 626-3845
www.stockton.edu/media

Galloway, NJ – Stockton University's Manahawkin Instructional Site will host a lecture on "Pure German Art vs. Degenerate Art," as part of the Holocaust & Genocide Series on Monday, June 20, 2016. The free event will be presented at the Manahawkin Instructional Site, located at 712 E. Bay Ave., at 2 p.m.

The lecture will explore art and the Nazi notion of "degenerate," and the importance of "pure German art" to the Nazi agenda.

The presentation will be given by Steven Marcus, a Stockton alumnus who currently serves as director of the Holocaust & Genocide dual credit symposium consortium and as an adjunct faculty member.

Attendees are requested to RSVP at 609-626-3883. For more information on activities and classes at the Manahawkin Instructional Site, visit: Stockton.edu/Manahawkin.

#