Galloway Township, NJ -The Southern Regional Institute and ETTC (SRI&ETTC) in the School of Education at The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey is hosting a free community health program at the college's instructional site in Woodbine, NJ, to educate participants about the top diseases affecting women's health.

"Women's Health: The Big Three" will educate participants about the risk factors, signs and symptoms and prevention strategies for the current top three diseases among women: heart disease, breast cancer and stroke. Participants will have an opportunity to sign up for a mammography screening for breast cancer.

This evidence-based program will be presented by the Parish Nurse/Lifestyle Management Program at Cape Regional Medical Center and will provide helpful information to women as well as their family members and caretakers. The program is open to the public and will be held at the Sam Azeez Museum of Woodbine Heritage and Culture, 610 Washington Ave.

The program will run from 11 a.m.-12 noon on Tuesday, Feb. 10, 2015 and will be presented by Bonnie Kratzer, of the Cape Regional Medical Center.

For more information contact the SRI&ETTC at 609-626-3868 or Bonnie Kratzer at 609-463-4043.
