Galloway Township, NJ- The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey will present the Stockton Chorale and Oratorio Society in “A Festival of African American Spirituals,” on Saturday, May 2, 2009 at 7:30 p.m. in the I-Wing Gymnasium on the Galloway Twp. campus.

The concert will feature music from noted composers such as Moses Hogan and William Dawson. “This is the first time in many years that the Oratorio Society will be singing all African-American Spirituals for the concert. Singers are traveling from around the state and region to be a part of this exciting event,” said Oratorio Society Director and Stockton Professor of Music, Beverly Vaughn.

Tickets for the concert will cost $8 for general admission and $6 for seniors and students with identification. Tickets may be purchased at the Stockton Performing Arts Center Box Office. For more ticket information call 609-652-9000 or e-mail pac@stockton.edu.

For general event information, call the Stockton’s Office of Arts and Humanities at 609-652-4505.
