Galloway, NJ – The public is invited to a free Cyber Security Workshop at the Manahawkin Instructional Site of The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey on Friday, Nov. 22, 2013 at 3 p.m.

This seminar will focus on topics related to cyberspace and online security —how it works, why it matters, and what one can do to defend oneself and one's family and business against cyber-attacks.

The workshop will be presented by Aakash Taneja, associate professor of Computer Science & Information Systems and students Gina Dirienzi, Nicolas Gengo, Meredith Flamensfeld and Eric Horton.

The event is sponsored by Stockton's School of Business and the Manahawkin Instructional Site, which is located at 712 East Bay Avenue, Suite 20, Manahawkin, NJ; phone: 609.626.3883. No registration is required for this event.
